Santa Claus comes to Cascapedia-St-Jules

Elaine Sexton

CASCAPEDIA-ST-JULES: - Pictured above are the children and parents who enjoyed a visit from Santa Claus recently at the municipal hall in Cascapedia-St-Jules. There were some new little faces this year as our little community continues to grow. It is wonderful to see the new generation! As you can see, this special day, is getting bigger every year.

This year over 35 children attended the activity which is truly remarkable. Santa has been dropping by our community for over 25 years. It is thanks to the volunteer firemen who every year make sure that Santa gets here after arriving from the North Pole.

Thank you to the Eagles Club who provided the treats for all the children. A big thanks to those who made the gingerbread men for the kids to decorate and the desserts that the people enjoyed.

A special thank-you to Santa who always takes time out of his very busy schedule to come and meet the little ones, also to his elves and Jimmy Geraghty, his personal chauffeur. Your help is greatly appreciated.

A very Merry Christmas and a happy and healthy 2017 to all from Cascapedia-St-Jules.

SAAQ office reopens

Gilles Gagné

BONAVENTURE – The Société de l'assurance-automobile du Québec, the SAAQ, which manages the matters of car registration and driving licences, has reopened an office in Bonaventure, six months after a May fire destroyed the previous office, located in a building that also housed a seniors residence. The temporary office is currently situated in the former bowling alley, on Louisbourg street. That location is temporary though, as the SAAQ is likely to launch a call for tenders for office space, probably during the first weeks of 2017. The SAAQ is targeting Bonaventure again for the permanent office. Since May, the users had to go to Carleton or Chandler in order to get their services.

FabDelta invests $6.45 million

NEW RICHMOND – Groupe FabDelta, a subsidiary of Fabrication Delta, is investing $6.45 million in an expansion of its New Richmond plant that is now allowing the company to make windmill tower hubs, the part that holds the blades. The expansion translates into the hiring of 15 people. The company has a contract to deliver 46 hubs for a company based in Ontario, Siemens Wind Power Limited, a subsidiary of a German giant in wind energy. Groupe FabDelta is receiving a $1.8 million guaranty of bank credit from the Quebec government, a $1 million loan from Canada Economic Development and a $150,000 grant from Quebec's FAIR, for Fonds d'aide aux initiatives régionales. The expansion was started at the beginning of last spring.

Pile of debris still untouched at New Carlisle's old cinema

Gilles Gagné

NEW CARLISLE – Two months after the halt imposed in the demolition of New Carlisle's old cinema by the Commission des normes, de l'équité, de la santé et de la sécurité au Travail, the CNESST, the contractor, Excavation Leblanc, still has not removed the building's pile of debris. "A representative of the Excavation Leblanc communicated with the inspector in charge of the file on Friday, December 9 and proposed a working strategy. We asked him to present a written document of the proposal. When we receive it, we will assess it and authorize the work," explains Maxime Boucher, communication officer for the CNESST, the body in charge of safety at work rules on Quebec's construction or demolition sites. Demolition work was stopped on October 20 when it was suspected that asbestos was present in the building material of the old cinema. Laboratory tests confirmed that presence. Demolition resumed the following day because the standing part of the building posed a safety problem. The contractor must submit a plan to the CNESST before any hauling operation to the Saint-Alphonse landfill can take place.

The Terrible Task!

I remember one winter when I was a young girl I was sent to pick up a parcel. Back then many people raised pigs because not everyone could afford to go to the store and buy meat. At that time, my Uncle Ron, was the man you would ask to kill your pigs quite a few people walking also, all of a sudden I hit a lump of snow on the sidewalk and my sleigh tipped over! Over went the sleigh, the box fell off and popped open and the pig head rolled down the side walk!

I thought the pig head would never stop sliding on the ice! Everyone stopped and stared at me chasing this pig head. I was so embarrassed! Here I was trying to pick up this bloody sawed-off pig head from the sidewalk while trying not to get any blood on my clothes. I was mortified! I managed to get the pig head back into the box and went home as fast as my sleigh would let me without tipping again. When I finally got home with the pig head I told my mother, "Never make me do that again!" And thank goodness, she didn't.

if you had any.

My mother, as many women did back then, used to make head cheese and for that you needed the head of a pig. So one day my mother asked me to go to my uncle Ron's because he had a pig head for her to make her head cheese with.

So I grabbed my sleigh and off I went to pick up this pig head for my mother. When I arrived at my Uncle Ron's he had the head in a big box and he put it on my sleigh for me and I started my journey back home.

How to achieve a stress-free holiday season

(NC) The holidays can be hectic, with a lot of work going into gift-giving, cooking, setting up decorations, and planning parties. Fortunately, there are ways to find time to slow down, take it all in, and enjoy time with family and friends.

One of the top holiday stressors is dealing with finances, which is also one of the last things that we want to think about during this time. According to Kerry Reynolds, head of consumer marketing at PayPal Canada, awkward conversations about money can be avoided.

"The average Canadian is down $462 in outstanding IOUs, partly because they're uncomfortable asking to be paid back," she says. "Using PayPal, we can quickly and easily make peer-to-peer payments at the touch of a button so that uncomfortable follow-ups can be a thing of the past."

Here are some more tips to reduce stress

this holiday season:

1. Make a list of dates. Mark your calendar with key dates like events or travel and include important milestones leading up to them. Consider when you need to pack, hire a babysitter, purchase an outfit, and arrange transportation so you aren't left coordinating at the last minute.

2. Do as much work in advance as possible. If you're hosting a dinner party, pre-chop veggies and make your salad dressing in advance for easy assembly. If your meal can be pre-cooked and frozen for reheating later, take advantage and get the work out of the way well ahead of time.

3. Get out of line and go online. Spend more time playing and less time paying when you shop online from the comfort of your home. And be sure to leave yourself enough time for delivery to avoid any unnecessary stress.

Creative ways to give back this year

(NC) The holiday season is not just about receiving gifts — it's also about giving. It's no secret that Canadians are generous. In 2015, Canadians ranked sixth on the CAW World Giving Index ranking with 65 per cent of Canadians donating money and 38 per cent volunteering time.

This year, learn how to give back in creative ways or look for opportunities to stretch your charitable dollars even further. Here are some tips to help you get in the spirit of giving:

1. Start a change jar. Challenge your family to put all of their spare change into a jar. At the end of the month, decide where to donate the money together.

2. Donate your talents. If you're a graphic design wiz, help your favourite local nonprofit create new materials for an upcoming campaign.

3. Stretch your donation dollars. Add value to monetary donations by giving to a cause through companies that top up or match donations. For example, from #GivingTuesday on November 29 until December 31, PayPal will add an additional 1per cent to all domade nations through www.CanadaHelps.org. CanadaHelps is a non-profit organization dedicated to increasing charitable giving across the country by making it easier to donate and fundraise online.

4. Give gifts that give back. Buy gifts from retailers who give back to a charity or cause. For example, tentree, a Canadian clothing company, plants 10 trees for every purchase made. Peace Collective supports the Breakfast for Learning program through select purchases.

5. Involve your friends. Host a give-back challenge among colleagues to see who can raise the most money or donate the most time to their favourite organizations throughout the month of December.

the colder seasons, it's important to make tice your skills on the ice. sure you and your family are still getting the daily minimum of 30 minutes of physical activity to keep minds and bodies healthy. Here are five tips to keep your brood active this winter.

1. Don't be afraid of snow. Winter has some great outdoor sports that are fun for everyone. Skiing, snowboarding, and snowshoeing are great activities that are familyfocused and keep heart rates up.

2. Consider indoor play areas and gyms. Check out your local community centre to see if there are any indoor activities. Many centres have swimming pools, climbing walls, and open gym times to play a fun game of basketball, badminton, or dodgeball. 3. Lace up those skates. Outdoor skating

4. Create a snow family. Fresh snow on the ground means it's the perfect time to start building those snow people. Rolling large balls of snow will keep bodies moving and the little ones will love being creative when decorating the face.

5. Take a winter hike. Canada is full of beautiful scenery that looks magical when its dusted with snow. Take the kids outside on a hike that lets them learn about our geography and keeps them active.

Bonus tip: Enjoy outdoor fun longer by staying warm with the proper toques, gloves, snow pants, and jackets. To get everything you need in one stop, check out Sport Chek for winter items for men, women, and kids of all ages.

How to stay safe while shoveling this winter

(NC) Whether we love or hate snow, shoveling is a reality of winter life in Canada. Clearing sidewalks is important for the safety of pedestrians, but the activity can prove hazardous for those unaccustomed to heavy lifting. Take into consideration the following tips as the snow starts to fall.

Always talk to your doctor about your health status before the winter season to ensure you are fit enough for the task.

Warm up first with a walk or light stretching, this will also help you get accustomed to the cool temperatures outside.

Don't be afraid to take lots of breaks. Drink plenty of water before and after and pay attention to your core temperature – you don't want to get too hot or too cold.

Dress for the part. Layering from head to toe is always a good option. Look for items like the T-Max hoodie and anti-slip winter boots from Mark's to ensure you stay warm and have good footing.

Always bend from your knees and not your back. Conserve your energy and think about pushing the snow to the edges instead of trying to lift it.

Be a good neighbour. If someone on your street isn't capable of shoveling their sidewalk, consider taking on the task and giving them a hand. More information is available at www.marks.com.

Join a different kind of book club this year

(NC) If you're looking for a book club or are already in one but want something a little different this year, check out the Amnesty International book club. With more than 5,000 members across the country, and no in-person meetings or food or wine, this is definitely a different kind of book club.

Started in 2014, the club asks a Canadian author to recommend a Canadian book everyone should read. Amnesty then produces a beautiful discussion guide containing information about the guest who provided the recommendation and the chosen book's author, discussion questions, and some information about a human rights issue related to the story. There's also an online action that book club members can take to help someone whose rights are being abused.

"Reading good books, discussing plot points and characters, and then being able to take action to help someone makes this a very special kind of book club," explains Catherine Brunelle, book club coordinator.

Previous book recommendations have included both The Book of Negroes and The Illegal by Lawrence Hill, Station Eleven by Emily St. John Mandel, Three Day Road by Joseph Boyden, What We All Long For by Dionne Brand, and Indian Horse by Richard Wagamese.

Flowers for the Altar

I had blond hair and hazel-blue eyes. I smiled easily. During the summer time, I didn't pay too much attention to washing my face that much—just a drop of water, a few little sprinkles, and wipe my face. I had a quick breakfast and off I would go. I didn't have any shoes. I would run around in bare feet. I remember I had one pair of shorts and they were held up with a pair of braces over my shoulders and a little shirt. These were my summer clothes. Unless it was cold that is what I wore pretty well all the time.

One thing I used to do is play "car". I had a tin pan and I would imagine that it was a car wheel.

One day—it was a nice sunny morning—and I decide to play "car". I had my tin pan and I was going around and making car noises with my lips and pretending I was driving the car.

I came to a field of oats between my grandfather's place and our place. I liked the yellow oats growing there, they seemed to be so nice. They were about my height, in fact. I decided I would trample them down—part of it anyway—and make little roads for myself in the oats. So, I started to do that—going up and down in the oats and making roads. It was fun.

My Aunt Margaret came by and she saw what I was doing and she said: "Listen, your father spent a lot of time planting those oats and I don't think he is going to be very happy." She didn't say I shouldn't do it but she said: "I think you should come with me. Come with me to my garden."

So, I went with her to her garden and she had a beautiful flower garden with all kinds of flowers and vegetables. She planted the vegetables and the flowers kind of together and it was like waking into a very pretty little place—a field with Lilac bushes, plum trees, rhubarb, and all kinds of flowers—holly hocks, lilies, and nasterious (spellings) and so on and so forth.

She said: "What I want to do is pick up a big bouquet of flowers and I want you to walk down and give that to the nuns to put on the altar of the church for tomorrow." Tomorrow being Sunday, for Sunday's mass the next day.

I was a little bit shy and didn't say yes or no but I was kind of pleased she had asked me.

So, she went around with her knife and she cut off this big, big, bouquet of flowers...as much as I could carry in my arms in fact.

So, off I started down the road on this sunny day. It was a dirt road. I was in bare feet. A little bit dusty. And I said hello and asked me different questions: how I was, what my name was and so forth.

I just looked at these people with a kind of a little smile but then I got afraid again. I just wouldn't say a word. I didn't say one word to them. But I was very interested in the car. I would come up close to the car and look inside a little bit and look at the panels and all the instruments, and I would get very curious and I would come up even closer. But as soon as I noticed they were looking at me, I would pull away and I would go back into the ditch. We kept interacting that way for a little while and they were friendly—they were smiling and trying to get me to say something. I wouldn't say a word. And finally, one of the ladies said: "Oh, what beautiful flowers. Where are you going with the flowers?"

As soon as they opened the door of the car to get out, I pulled away and went further back into the ditch. When they noticed I was afraid, they didn't come any further.

Anyway, they asked if I would sell them the flowers. And I couldn't answer the question. I kind of wanted to sell the flowers. I wondered what would Aunt Margret say. We could always get another bouquet of flowers for the alter and besides it would be nice to have the money. And I didn't know how much the flowers were worth. I was saying all these things to myself.

And they asked: "Will you sell us your flowers?"

I didn't answer—not a word. I just smiled.

Then the car gradually pulled away and that was my kind of experience with those people.

I was kind of disappointed I hadn't sold the flowers. Then I felt I did the right thing and I walked down and gave them to the nuns at the convent.

I got home and I told Aunt Margaret about the car that had asked me to sell the flowers. I don't remember her saying anything one way or the other. I don't remember her reaction to that.

But I do remember when I got home, Papa (that's what we called my Dad) was looking for me and he said: "What did you do to the oats? Why did you trample down the oats? Why did you make that big road in the oats?"

And again, I couldn't say a word to him. I was thinking: "My gosh, I didn't know I had done anything wrong." He was disappointed and somewhat angry and he said: "You go to your room now and stay there."

He sent me up to my room and I remember just lying there in my bed not knowing what to do. I remember a big thunder storm came. I remember, we always had one spot in the house where my father no matter how he tried he couldn't stop the leak by putting coal tar on the roof. I was just lying in my bed feeling sorry for myself and just feeling sad and there were little drips of water coming in from the roof.

It's free for anyone to join and the discussion guides are great both for people in a book club, or for those who just want to be part of the conversation.

was carrying this big bouquet of flowers in my arms.

And then, I saw a beautiful black car coming up the road. I thought to myself: "Oh my gosh, there is a car coming." It was not one from the village. It was a visitor.

In the village, we would talk about gypsies at that time. I didn't know much about the idea of "tourists" but these people I learned later were Americans tourists.

They came up with the big black car and I stood right over in the ditch. Basically, I stood in the ditch so they wouldn't notice me very much. Anyhow, the car came up slowly and when it came right beside me it stopped. I became very afraid. I didn't say anything. I just looked at them. The car was full of people and they put down their windows and they started to talk to me. They

I wasn't in my room very long before my father came up and he said: "Here is a chocolate bar for you." I was just so happy, and just so excited. A chocolate bar was something we didn't get very often. Generally, if we did have a chocolate bar we would have to cut it all up and divide it into little pieces so that everyone in the family got a piece of the chocolate bar. And here was a whole chocolate bar for me. I just couldn't believe it.

Lots of Christmas cheer at annual concert

Elaine Sexton

CASCAPEDIA-ST-JULES: -The 29th Christmas concert held at the Cascapedia-St-Jules Fifty Plus Club was once again well attended and showed off all the talent our children and adults have.

On behalf of President Russell Campbell, everyone was thanked for their support and all those gathered to hear some Christmas favourites were welcomed.

The children welcomed the audience with a poem and sang a variety of songs which included the always favourite "Jingle Bells," "Rudolph," "Deck the Halls," and other fun tunes. They each had a special decoration that they will keep as a souvenir of this special night.

Mackenzie Tourout sang a solo as did her mom, Shauna Boudreau, and they then did a duet, "Santa Baby."

My sister Darlene and I, accompanied by Jim tried our voices with "Bluegrass, White Snow" along with "Christmas Times a Coming." Jim sang two songs, one being "Halleluia," with a Christmas theme incorporated in it.

We had one last poem by me and the childen then welcomed Santa. He arrived right on time to ask the children what they wanted for Christmas. Thank you Santa for taking time out of your busy schedule for us.

There were two door prizes this year. Two centrepieces thanks to A&R Decorations and all the fixings for a Christmas supper thanks to the club.

A big thank-you to the children and the parents who rehearsed with them.

Thanks to Delilah Hardy

Thank you to all our clientele. We wish you for the beautiful decorations which put everyone working in the canteen in a Christmas mood.

This year every child received a gift that was donated by the army base in Borden, Ontario. They had a surplus of gifts and Karen and Ron Cahill, from our community who live in Ontario, when asked if there was an organization who might want them, were enough to mention us, and they delivered them. We were all very touched with this gesture.

There are no words that can express our thanks to our faithful musician Jim Cahill, who once again accompanied us all. We were not a big crew this year, but we were a lively one.

We will all be back on stage again next year for our 30th anniversary. Remember time goes by so quickly, so if you would like to be part of this great tradition, write it in your agenda as the new year begins.

On behalf of President Russell Campbell and our club, I wish you all the best of health and happiness in 2017.

The Call of the Wild

By Joan Woodman

With the crisp winter air, the snowflakes were gently falling and the North star was shining brightly upon us. Finally it was Friday and Saturday, when we could slide, skate and play for hours after our chores were done.

Daddy would faithfully check the thickness of the river ice, he had gained that knowledge, as he and his parents crossed it for years before.

When the barn chores were finished the boys would come in and when I had finished my house duties, it was time to grab our flashlights and sleds and head off to Aunt Beth and Uncle Cecil Milligans'. The Milligan homestead.

We crossed safely. There was our ride! Edward Dunbar and Darlene were loading their sleds in the truck. Lots of room for ours too. We tied them down tightly for our trek over to Harrimans' Mountain. In climbed Walter, Warren and myself into a 1958 Ford Fairlane. Aunt Beth was just "giving her," we were flying down the Nor' West with the snow banks towering around us. We loved the car ride; it was wild. Our chauffeur shifted gears and then "drifted" around Tippy Cormiers' corner, over the narrow wooden bridge, then just spun the whole way up the hill.

We soon arrived at Aunt Beth's home-reached the summit. Back in those days we always slid with an older friend, who could help the younger ones. Well that's where my dear friend, Marshall Coull comes into the story. Did I mention the "hard-sled" we decided to bring was Daddys' barn chores sled. Off Marshall and I went, the "hard-sled" was heavy so the weight made it pick up speed like we were on "turbo-boost," Out of nowhere we saw the "clothesline pole," Timber!! Marshall yelled and so we jumped. We went in different directions. That sled cracked straight down the middle. It hit so hard and so loud the sound echoed off the mountains and over to the valley. Albert came barreling out of his house and asked "What the Jesus happened? Is everyone alright?" Aside from the shock ... I don't think I could reply. He saw the sled and calmly replied to Walter, Warren and myself. "Give me some time and I'll see what I can do". Shortly after we saw Albert coming out with our sled. It was in one piece! We were awestruck; we could not believe it. Precisionly crafted, truly a work of art. We all went home later and placed the sled, yes the hard-sled back in the same spot it had been left in earlier.

The next morning we were having our breakfast before starting our day and our eyes were peeled like stickers on the winstead to visit her brother Albert and sister-inlaw Jean. We bailed out of the car, took our ropes off our cargo to face "Harrimans Mountain,", which is renowned in these parts as "The Ultimate Challenge" We dow.

Daddy came out of the horse barn with a smile and waved to us. We were ever so grateful to have come off the mountain in one piece.

In Memory

CLARK: Ralph, Della and Morris When I come to the end of the road And the sun has set for me, I want no rites in a gloom filled room, Why cry for a soul set free. Miss me a little but not too long, And not with a head bowed low. Remember the love that was once shared, Miss me but let me go. For this journey we must all take, and each must go alone. Miss me but let me go. Loved and missed always, The Clark Family.

SMITH: Charles

Loved and remembered by your brothers, Craig and Darryl and sister Starr.

Prayer for safe travel

Lord, be our guide and our protector on the journey we are about to take. Watch over us. Protect us from accidents. Keep us free from harm to body and soul. Lord, support us with Your grace when we are tired. Keep us always mindful of Your presence and love. Amen.

WHITE: Leo

In loving memory of a dear husband, father, fatherin-law and grandfather who passed away December 21, 2013. Those special memories of you, Will always bring a smile. The fact that you're no longer here, Will always cause us pain. But you're forever in our hearts, Until we meet again. Forever loved and sadly missed by wife Lorna, daughters, Donna, Sandra and Valerie and families.

Delight with a peppermint candy cane dessert

(NC) Peppermint candy cane could be the official taste of Christmas. For added whimsy, add a sprig of holly and a bow to make this dessert look like a festive wreath. Serves 8.

Candy Cane Pavlova

- 6 egg whites
- 1 3/4 cups (425 mL) granulated sugar
- 1 tsp (5 mL) white vinegar
- 1 tsp (5 mL) cornstarch
- 2 cups (500 mL) whipping cream
- 3 tbsp (45 mL) granulated sugar
- 1/4 tsp (1mL) peppermint extract (optional)
- 12 to 15 mini candy canes (about 100 g)
- · Dark chocolate curls

Directions:

1. Preheat oven to 300°F (150°C). Line a baking sheet with parchment paper. Trace a 10 inch (25 cm) circle with a marker on the parchment, then add a 4 inch (10 cm) inner circle. When marker dries, flip it over so that the marked side is facing down.

2. Whisk egg whites using an electric mixer until foamy. With mixer running, gradually add sugar. Increase speed to high and whisk until egg whites are glossy, thick, and hold stiff peaks; about 4 to 7 minutes. Stir vinegar with cornstarch until smooth. Whisk into egg whites.

3. Spoon mixture onto prepared sheet following the marker lines to create a wreath. Use the back of a large spoon to create indentations for the whipped cream.

4. Place pan in the oven and reduce temperature to 250°F (120°C). Bake 90 minutes or until meringue is golden and cooked through. Let cool completely.

5. Using an electric mixer on high, whip cream with sugar and peppermint until it forms soft peaks. Spoon into indentations in meringue. Roughly crack 4 candy canes into large pieces and sprinkle over whipped cream, then place 8 whole ones evenly apart so each serving gets a candy cane.

Brie, pear and prosciutto pizza

Ingredients

- 30 mL (2 tbsp) all-purpose flour
- 4 portions frozen pizza dough,
- thawed overnight in refrigerator
- 200 mL (7/8 cup) brie, cut into thin slices
- 2 Bosc pears, cored and thinly sliced
- 30 mL (2 tbsp) olive oil
- 160 mL (about 1-1/2 cups) grated mozzarella cheese
- 4 slices of prosciutto, finely chopped
- 120 mL (1/2 cup) finely chopped parsley

1. Position racks in top and bottom thirds of oven. Preheat to 425F. Lightly spray 2 baking sheets with oil.

2. Dust a counter with flour. Roll out each portion of dough into 8 inch-wide rounds. Top with brie slices, then pear slices. Brush tops of pizza and crust with oil. Sprinkle with mozzarella.

 Bake in top and bottom thirds of oven, switching sheets halfway through, until bottom of crust is golden and cheese is melted, 20 to 25 minutes. Sprinkle with prosciutto and parsley.
