Justin Trudeau in Percé: Gaspesian pride

Diane Skinner

PERCÉ: - On a brilliant summer afternoon in July, in Percé, I had an opportunity that I just could not pass up. I was driving to Anse à Beaufils to interview artist John Wiseman for the Gaspé Spec and I found out that Justin Trudeau would be making a low profile fly in and out to the Gaspé to visit Forillon Park and the Percé wharf. Media would be having a limited opportunity to meet with the Prime Minister in Percé and perhaps ask a question or two. I would be right there so I took the opportunity as a sign that I should go and get "up close" to Justin Trudeau. You can't fault me for that. Many would love to take my place. I want you to know he did not disappoint me.

The whole process was fascinating because the media, who gets to be in a more controlled and small group with the Prime Minister, is screened for the safety of Mr. Trudeau. The RCMP arrived and gathered the media types from newspapers, radio and TV stations. The RCMP, mostly dressed in black, had us put all our items, such as cameras, notebooks and bags on the ground. The dog that is trained to sniff out anything hazardous, examined our belongings. We were all cleared and an officer informed us that now that we had passed security he would be staying right with us until our meeting with the Prime Minister was concluded. It was then about 1:30 and I had been standing on the Percé wharf area in the blazing sun for about 45 minutes. No shade. No water. Maybe that was good because no washroom visits were permitted. There was about a dozen of us, all eager to get up close and maybe ask that one clever question that no other reporter had thought of. Nope. Not too likely because his media coordinator informed us that a total of three questions could be asked. We all groaned and looked at each other, a little crestfallen.

Minister, Justin Trudeau.

Then the Prime Minister appeared. Justin spoke fluently in both languages, of course slipping effortlessly between the two languages. Justin Trudeau, accompanied by Dianne LeBouthilier, talked about visiting the Gaspé as a child with his father. He sang the praises of our beloved Gaspé. We were all beaming with Gaspesian pride. Then the "scrum" began. In layman's terms, a scrum is a free-for-all where reporters shout all their questions and hope to get a direct response. Now, I want Spec readers to know that I had a list of questions prepared. My intended questions were about the train, E.I., community newspapers in a linguistic minority situation, summer student jobs, the whales and striped bass. This was my most compelling intended question: The Gaspé has an aging population, even more so because our children and grandchildren are moving away to find jobs, training, education and other opportunities. What can your government do to ensure young people on the Coast have more opportunities to make a life for themselves here? I think you know where this is going. I did not get the chance to ask my question but I did have another opportunity. His media personnel asked if I would like a photo with the Prime Minister. What can I say? It was sunny and I squinted. It was my one, and likely only, chance to have my photo taken with Justin Trudeau. So perhaps the caption for my photo with him could be "Trudeau's appearance brightens the Coast..."

the one that will always stay in my memory occurred as Justin Trudeau followed by his many RCMP officers were crossing the street to have lunch in one of the little restaurants on the main street of Percé. People started to spontaneously applaud, then others joined in and hundreds were clapping as he entered the restaurant.

The most moving moment of the whole experience and

You may or may not be a fan of the Prime Minister. You may be a supporter of his and not agree with every decision. That's our right in a democracy.

It made me think, love him, or not, our Prime Minister is worthy of respect. In a time of much darkness in the world, and cynicism in politics, it's wonderful to have someone we can clap for. The sun was shining inside our minds, and on the picturesque Percé Rock that day. Be proud. We Gaspesians showed respect. That's who we are. New money for the Gaspesian cultural sector

Thierry Haroun

L'ANSE-À-BEAUFILS: The region's cultural sector has received some good news. It will benefit from $452,000 over three years for specific projects. SPEC was at the presentation of the program at the Vieille Usine in l'Anse-à-Beaufils on July 17.

The amount is part of a three-year agreement between the Québec Arts Council (CALQ), the five MRCs of the region, the towns of Gaspé, Carleton, Paspébiac and Culture Gaspésie (the region's Culture Council, based in Bonaventure).

The program, under the supervision of the CALQ, has the following objectives: stimulate artistic creation, promote artists and writers, favour the retention of artists in their respective collectivity, support emerging artists and support new technologies in the art works. To understand the way the program works and to make sure to follow the right steps in order to be accepted, Culture Gaspésie organized information sessions across the peninsula and the last stop was at the Vieille Usine on July 17 where 15 artists from various fields took part. The master of ceremony was Anick Loisel, executive director of Culture Gaspésie. Spec interviewed her just after her two-hour presentation which included a debate and a question period. "I'm very happy with the turn out. Approximately 15 artists were present and they asked relevant questions. This information session is important because it can take a month to fill out all the documents and find partners to make sure that your cultural project is completed before sending it. Then it can take up to three months before a decision is made," she said. A project can be financed up to $20,000.

A specific agreement with Percé Rock MRC

In the theme of this threeyear program (2017-2020), a specific agreement was signed between the Percé Rock MRC and Culture Gaspésie. The agreement consists of supporting the artists of the MRC as they submit their applications to the program which is not that simple to fill out. Therefore, Anick Loisel has been designated to accompany those who need some help, mentions Francis Dumont, responsible for the Social Development of the MRC. "It's a unique agreement in the peninsula. We're very pleased that our artists can benefit of personalized support. Moreover, if a project needs more money to become reality and we judge that it's relevant, the MRC can chip in more money through other programs available to the community," he added. For all the details, visit the web site of the CALQ.

A seniors' charter

Thierry Haroun

GASPÉ PENINSULA: - The Gaspésie and Magdalen Islands Seniors' Concertation Table has recently published the Regional Seniors' Rights and Liberty Charter which is based on the principles of the Canadian Charter of Rights. The idea is to sensitize the population and organizations on the importance of respecting seniors' rights, to prevent abuse and prejudices in regards to aging, explains the President of the Table, Laval Cavanaugh. "It's not that all seniors are faced with all sorts of abuse. There are many seniors that are well treated, but the Charter is published to remind people that problems do exist, that seniors are faced with all sorts of abuse and we want to prevent that and sensitize the population. Some establishments in the region have accepted to hang it on their wall." It should also be mentioned that on May 30, the Quebec government passed a bill, unanimously supported by all the deputies of the National Assembly of Quebec, that aimed at fighting senior abuse and other vunerable situations.

Justin Trudeau visited the Forillon Park with his wife and his three children.

TRUDEAU VISITS THE GASPÉ PENINSULA: Many photo ops and a short meeting with the press

Geneviève Gélinas

PERCÉ: – When visiting the Gaspé Coast on July 18, Canada's Prime Minister chose two icons: the Cap-des-Rosiers lighthouse at the limit of the Forillon National Park, and the Percé wharf as back-drops. Ironically, his government wants to get rid of these two icons.

Justin Trudeau was visiting the peninsula for the first time since he became prime minister. He stopped on the north side of Forillon Park, where he walked on the beach with his family. In the background stood the highest lighthouse in Canada, described as "surplus" by its owner, the Federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans Canada, who is trying to transfer its ownership.

"We're listening to people who are grounded to the file. We understand the issue. Our Fisheries and Oceans Minister is checking to see if there's something to do," stated the prime minister. Doing all the required repairs on the lighthouse would cost $6 million, estimates the ministry. The town of Gaspé and the nonprofit corporation that organizes visits in the building don't have the financial capacity to acquire it, given those costs. The poor condition of the lighthouse is already having an impact, as the Committee for the Cap-des-Rosiers Lighthouse National Historical Site had to forbid access to the interior of the building for a few days at the beginning of July to do emergency repairs.

ister Trudeau went close to the wharf in Percé, where he briefly answered journalists' questions. This structure also belongs to Fisheries and Oceans Canada, who wants to get rid of it too. The wharf has reached the end of its useful life and has to be rebuilt.

"We recognize that the wharf is important for the community and for tourism," stated Trudeau. "Good negotiations" are going on with the Quebec Government, which is willing to acquire the wharf once it's rebuilt.

This spring, emergency work had to be done on the wharf, damaged by last winter's storms. Only the first 100 metres and one ramp are open. Each year from May to October, about 195,000 people walk on the Percé wharf. Among them, about 60,000 people board excursion boats to Bonaventure Island.

The prime minister was also asked about the employment insurance program. "I understand the concerns about the black hole, the reality of seasonal work. We're verifying how we can better serve the people who need support in their work," said Mr. Trudeau. The Gaspésie-Îles-de-la-Madeleine Member of Parlia-(MP), Diane ment Lebouthillier, had promised to cancel the employment insurance reform made by the Conservatives.

reduced the number of hours required to qualify. We went from two weeks to one week (for the waiting period before receiving benefits). We also experience a lack of workforce. We don't have enough arms. For me, it's a priority."

Workers, in shrimp processing notably, still experience the "black hole" in the spring, a period without pay and without benefits, before fishing begins.

The journalists present at the Forillon and Percé visits experienced the protocol of a prime minister's visit. A dog sniffed their cameras and bags to make sure they didn't contain a bomb. As Justin Trudeau was walking on the beach with his wife and his three children at Forillon National Park, the journalists' work was a long "photo opportunity" on a predetermined itinerary. The journalists couldn't ask any questions at that time.

In Percé, Justin Trudeau held an informal gathering. He first said in both languages how happy he was to be in Percé, where he came several times with his father. Then the journalists were allowed four questions, including three about regional issues. There were exactly three minutes and 40 seconds from the first question to the end of the last answer. Then the prime minister moved on and met the crowd on Wharf Street. The only official press conference of Mr. Trudeau's day took place in Mont-Joli, in the Lower St. Lawrence region, 400 kilometers west of Percé.

Police report

Irven Chicoine, 48, from the Bridgeville sector of Percé was arrested on July 20 in his residence by Sûreté du Québec investigators and charged later that day with possession of child pornography, accessing child pornography on websites and distribution of child pornography. He allegedly was distributing that material to people living in the United States.

He was released the same day under strict conditions, namely not possessing any electronic devices and not accessing websites. Crown prosecutor Annie Cyr has reasons to believe that the suspect committed these illegal acts over a period of six months. "The investigators still have examinations to do on the devices used by the suspect. The computer was seized in the house," she said. Irven Chicoine will return to the Percé courthouse on September 25 for the orientation of his case.

A day prior to the arrest of Irven Chicoine, Gino Vallée, 53, from Gaspé was also arrested at his residence by the Sûrete du Québec major crime squad and appeared on July 20 at the Percé courthouse, on charges of possession of child pornography photos and accessing child pornography websites. His case was then rescheduled to August 28, at which time his bail hearing will be held. The investigators seized some material in his house, including a computer that will be analyzed by experts.

Since 2010, the Sûreté du Québec has trained up to 250 investigators in order to enable them to inquire about juvenile pornography cases and sexual exploitation of children. These investigators operate all over Quebec and support the squad specializing in online juvenile sexual exploitation

Sûreté du Québec officers remind the public that risks of collision are higher during the construction holidays, which started on the evening of July 21. Up to 25% of Quebec's active population is on holidays between that day and August 6. During the 2016 construction holiday, 11 people died in 11 collisions that occurred in the territory covered by the Sûreté du Québec. During the 2015 construction holidays, 22 people had died on the roads in the territory covered by the Sûreté du Québec. The Sûreté du Québec also want to remind the public that 20% of Quebec's construction workers will not be on holiday between July 21 and August 6 so please respect speed limits when passing through construction zones.

On the afternoon of July 19, a five-year-old boy from New Richmond was rescued from the Pin Rouge Centre pool.

The child was participating in a day camp activity at the pool. A day camp counsellor intervened to rescue the child who was at the bottom of the deep end of the pool. The lifeguard, with the assistance of a client at the Pin Rouge Centre, performed CPR. The child regained consciousness one or two minutes later. Though shaken, he was able to answer various questions.

I read with interest the story Kaye Walker wrote in the June 23 paper. My husband Weston used to talk about him and his brother going up on the train from Gaspé to visit Aunt Sarah and Uncle John. Their mother, Jennie, was Aunt Sarah's sister. They had a good time at the farm. Wes has lost a lot of memory and wasn't sure how they got back to the farm.

After we married in the early 50s, I had the pleasure of meeting his grandparents and what people they were! Also have met most, if not all Lottie's (Kaye's mother's) sisters, brothers, some in Gaspé and out here in Vancouver. I love to get the Spec. Always someone I know or have heard of. Keep up the good work.

We have beauty unknown throughout our Gaspé Peninsula. Did you know that summertime is always the best of what it can be, not of what it could be or should be? We benefit much here because of our picturesque landscaping, the enormous trees that connect each town and the sandy beaches which zig-zag along uneven coastline. Did you not realize that everything magical happens here at the same time when our summers do fit like perfection in thoughts like camping, walking, BBQ, or just sitting outside enjoying the fresh country air? Our summers can never be forgotten with many tourists of all walks of life and culture strolling our beautiful shorelines which stand rich in appreciation and cleanliness. Also, there are many outgoing delightful bilingual friends, neighbours and doings which cannot come any nearer to perfection as our small establish towns summer after summer. Ken Ross

I have been a subscriber of the Gaspé Spec for many years and I read with interest the comments of Gilles Gagné. He has many good points and his commentary is generally of interest, even for those living far away from the Gaspé Coast.

I do not see many mistakes but his editorial in June 14 issue contained a glaring error for which I think he needs to apologize. In the issue he says Mr. Notley. While there was a Mr. Notley, he died in a plane crash in 1984. Rachel Notley, our premier is his daughter. While I do not always agree with her policy she should rightfully be referred to as Ms. Notley. I expect Mr. Gagné would agree.

Correction

Spec wishes to apologize for the typo in the June 14 commentary, referring to Rachel Notley as Mr. Notley.

Gaspésie Railway Society president satisfied with monitoring committee meeting

Gilles Gagné

NEW RICHMOND: - The president of the Gaspésie Railway Society, Éric Dubé, is "very satisfied" with the way his concerns and the concerns of other Gaspé Peninsula stakeholders were received by Quebec's Department of Transport officials, during the first monitoring committee meeting held since Premier Philippe Couillard announced that the Matapedia-Gaspé line would be repaired all along its length, for $100 million, maybe more.

Mr. Couillard made that announcement on May 5 and 11 weeks passed before the first meeting of the monitoring committee on July 20, a rather long stretch considering the urgency of putting the railway back in working order between Caplan and Gaspé. That section has been dormant since March 2015, a decision made by Quebec's Department of Transport after its acquisition of the line.

"It was a first meeting. I was not expecting coming out of it with a calendar including dates of construction contacts and their realization, and seeing that we will be in Gaspé in a year-and-a-half.

The "Office of big projects," which now supervises the line revamping, was explained to us. We have to get familiar with the process taking charge of the projects over

In less than a year, LM Windpower has become the biggest source of revenue for the Gaspésie Railway Society.

$50 million (...) Overall, I am very satisfied because the Transports Québec people that attended the meeting are in an action mode," says Éric Dubé.

Besides him, seven other stakeholders from the Gaspé Peninsula attended the meeting, including Luc Lévesque, director general of the Gaspésie Railway Society; Alexandre Boulay, director general of LM Windpower in Gaspé; Hervé Mallet, president and chief executive officer of McInnis Cement in Port Daniel; Nadia Minassian, prefect of the Percé Rock MRC; and the mayor of Gaspé, Daniel Côté.

"We learned that some calls for tenders are underway for the Matapedia to Caplan stretch, where the studies are done and the needs are known. We have reached the conception of plans and specifications there. There are also calls for tenders linked to the replacement of 20,000 ties and the laying of 20,000 tonnes of ballast, also between Matapedia and Caplan," points out Mr. Dubé.

The July 20 meeting didn't clarify much the magnitude of work that will be carried out this year east of Caplan, where the Gaspésie Railway Society's two most important sources of revenues are or will be based. Gaspé-based windmill blade manufacturer, LM Windpower is already the most important customer of the line operator, even if its blades are hauled by truck between the plant and New Richmond, where they are transferred to flat cars. McInnis Cement will become an important customer as soon as its commercial production starts, days or weeks away.

"The reassuring part of the line east of Caplan is that we don't have to prove that it is an interesting business case, because LM and McInnis Cement are already there. What we have to do now is completing the studies about the workload that remains to be carried out in order to get trains to Port Daniel and Gaspé. We will make sure that everything will rise together. For example, four bridges have to be fixed to reach Port Daniel. Well, they have to be fixed at the same time, not one after the other," explains Mr. Dubé.

He is under the impression that work will accelerate significantly in 2018. As for reinforcing with big rocks the railway straightening up operation that has been taking

Let's Read, Canada!

Celebrations for Canada 150 continue throughout the year and we have over five months to read (or re-read) some great Canadian books. This can be our own personal way of commemorating Canada's birthday. You can find countless lists of Canadian books and there is, of course, not one list that is better than another. Book lists are subjective things. So find here, my completely biased list of 25 Canadian books worth a read or reread during 2017. They are in no particular order.

Fall on Your Knees, Ann-Marie Macdonald The Best Laid Plans, Terry Fallis Book of Negroes, Lawrence Hill Astronaut's Guide to Life on Earth, Chris Hadfield A Complicated Kindness, Miriam Toews Apprenticeship of Duddy Kravitz, Mordechai Richler Never Cry Wolf, Farley Mowat Stone Angel, Margaret Laurence The Birth House, Ami McKay The Handmaid's Tale, Margaret Atwood Crow Lake, Mary Lawson Anne of Green Gables (the entire series), Lucy Maud Montgomery No Great Mischief, Alistair Macleod Shipping News, Annie Proulx The Wars, Timothy Findley The Diviners, Margaret Laurence The Last Crossing, Guy Vanderhaeghe Selected Stories of Mavis Gallant, Mavis Gallant Mercy Among the Children, David Adams Richards My Best Stories, Alice Munro Tin Flute, Gabrielle Roy Who Has Seen the Wind, W.O. Mitchell Beautiful Losers, Leonard Cohen Volkswagen Blues, Jacques Poulin Three-Day Road, Joseph Boyden Of course any book by Stuart McLean is worth a reading. I am already thinking of more terrific Canadian books, like Whale Music by Paul Quarrington, The Bishop's Man by Linden McIntyre and Late Nights on Air by Elizabeth Hay. Start reading to celebrate Canada 150 and create your own list of worthy Canadian books. There are loads of them. You can get so much from a good book. Such as this wisdom from The Book of Negroes by Lawrence Hill: "Beauty comes and goes. Strength you keep forever."

NACC Québec docks at McInnis Cement for loading tests

Gilles Gagné

PORT DANIEL – The NACC Québec, the cement carrier chartered by McInnis Cement for the delivery of some of its production, has been docked at the company's marine terminal since July 15.

"The ship arrived at the terminal on Saturday for tests on our loading equipment. The distribution will start soon," explains McInnis Cement's spokesperson Maryse Tremblay. However, she refuses to predict a date for the first cement delivery. She nevertheless mentions that "our production progresses well. We surpassed our clinker and cement objectives in July. We had also surpassed our goals in June. Moreover, the quality is there," she stresses. The NACC Québec is owned by a joint venture formed by Nova Shipping and Algoma Central Corporation, respectively based in Luxemburg and Canada. The head office of Algoma Central Corporation is located in Sault-Sainte-Marie, Ontario. The ship was built in 2011. She has a length of 139.95 metres and a width of 21 metres. The ship's draught reaches 6.1 metres and her capacity is close to 15,000 tonnes. She is registered in Gaspé. Her former name was Tenace and she was registered in Valletta, Malta.

Ferry project still waiting for an answer from Quebec

GASPÉ: – Québec is turning a deaf ear to the requests of the Gaspé, Île-d'Anticosti and Havre-Saint-Pierre municipalities which want the Société des traversiers du Québec to operate a ferry service between those three points. They argue that the project would boost tourism in the three destinations while increasing access for Anticosti Island.

Geneviève Gélinas

The Municipality of L'Îled'Anticosti filed for a first request for a meeting with Quebec Transport Minister Laurent Lessard in December 2016. The request remained unanswered, so the three municipalities filed for another request in June.

Gaspé Mayor Daniel Côté is optimistic, despite the absence of a reply. "The signals we get behind the scenes are that the project is well perceived. Our mission is to make it rise in the order of priorities (...). We have gone through many steps with the Société des traversiers du Québec (STQ) and there's a nice opening."

The three municipalities argue that a ferry could increase the visits to the parks of the Gaspé Peninsula (Forillon, Percé Rock and Bonaventure Island and Parc de la Gaspésie), of Anticosti and of the Mingan archipelago, by connecting them. "Let's benefit from our location, at the extremities, to connect opposite shores, let's make the access to Anticosti Island easier and let's create a tourist experience," summarizes Mr. Côté.

A study made in 2015 by a consulting firm, Lemay + DAA Stratégies, estimated at 1.7 million people the potential pool of Quebec tourists who could use the ferry.

The original project was including a plan to purchase a ship, at a cost of $15 million including the cost of implementation. The ship would have a capacity of 125 vehicles and 637 passengers. It would make one crossing per day and would come back the next day.

However, the municipalities are now asking the STQ to lead a feasibility study about a maritime link. The main argument is now to allow Anticosti to overcome isolation. The difficult access to the island increases the cost of living for the 216 inhabitants, concentrated in Port-Menier, and handicaps their development efforts, argues Île-d'Anticosti Mayor John Pineault.

"We import 280 seasonal workers per year. There's a cost for their employers: they have to house them, transport them, and give them a per diem. Why don't we convince them to stay here? That's because of remoteness and isolation," Mr. Pineault says.

The Bella-Desgagnés ship, owned by a company named Relais Nordik, moors twice a week in Port-Menier, but those crossings don't come from the same port, so that often makes as if there is only one crossing. Vehicles also have to be loaded in containers to be transported on the ship.

Through an email, the Transport Ministry wrote to the SPEC to say that "we are currently in contact with the Town (of L'Île-d'Anticosti) and we're evaluating this request."

Port of call to be improved

RIVIÈRE-AU-RENARD: -On the Gaspesian side, the ferry would moor in Rivièreau-Renard, which is not waiting for the ferry concretization before improving its waterfront. The village, the most important fishing port in Quebec, will soon become more attractive for tourists. Ottawa is investing $912,000 this year to prepare the revitalization project plans and specifications, including a hydrological study to make sure that the infrastructures will resist erosion. Quebec will invest $3 million next year to do the work.

Rivière-au-Renard will have a boardwalk on the waterfront, from the d'Amours and Cloutier wharves, contin- and then to the Pêcheries boardwalk will be punctuated uing behind Du Banc Street, Gaspésiennes plant. The with public squares, playgrounds, monuments and interpretation signs about modern fisheries.

"The ferry project and the Rivière-au-Renard revitalization project are complementary, even if one can take place without the other. The ferry would be an additional tourist means to generate traffic and (the Rivière-au-Renard revitalization) is an asset to push for the ferry project," says Mayor Daniel Côté.

A second phase of $6 million will consist of building a bicycle path, a boardwalk passing over the marsh in the center of the village and a memorial square close to the Plourde bridge, where two residents died in the 2007 flood.

Beaches on the Coast

On our beautiful coast, there are many notable beaches where a person can go to enjoy the wonderful summer weather. If you are looking for the perfect place to book a beach day, you've come to the right place!

A few beaches on the coast that really pop out as great and outstanding are:

The Green Beach in New Carlisle has an excellent boardwalk, washrooms, canteen and park. Newport Beach is famous for its sandy shores. Municipal Beach in Caplan has a shelter to keep you out of the sun, washrooms, playground and kayak and paddle board rentals.

Help me finish this list by sending me info on your favourite beach: specs@globetrotter.net

Beach tips

Don't forget to bring lots of drinking water, as its very important to stay hydrated in hot weather! Also don't forget your sunscreen to protect yourself from those nasty sunburns! If you have children with you, beach toys are a must.

Duthie Point activities

Starting on July 26, the Canadian Wildlife Federation in association with Duthie Point will be hosting activities for children ages 10 to 14 with the hope that they will keep in touch with the outdoors environment. Activities on the agenda include: sailing, fishing, lessons on plants and animals, shelter building and more! These events will take place every Wednesday until August 23. Both English and French instructors will be on site!

Crab Festival in Paspebiac August 2 - 6

Paspébiac's annual Crab Festival will take place from August 2 to August 6 on the waterfront. The ticket booth will open at 7 p.m. every night throughout the duration of the festival. Musical entertainment from many different artists will take place, artists such as Jonny Arsenault, Bodh'Aktan, Pixie Lee Band, Alex & Caro and many others will play at this festival! If this is your kind of thing, then come on down!

The Thirsty Thursday's entertainment for August 3 is local artist Jordan Duguay. He will be performing music from genres such as classic rock, and rock and country for everybody to enjoy! If you love supporting local artists and enjoy local entertainment, then this is the place for you to be.

In collaboration with the Municipality of New Carlisle; on July 28 at the Green, Ian & Jenny Lévesque will be playing blues & pop rock from 1970s to presentday music. The event will begin at 8 p.m. Voluntary contributions can be made, and proceeds will go to Heritage New Carlisle.

There will be a Pow Wow starting on July 28 in Gesgapegiag, and it will last until July 30. Spectacular displays of drumming, traditional dancing, and singing will take place. There also will be Indigenous vendors and traditional food. The event is free to the public and everyone is welcome.

An ATV Drag festival will take place in Newport at the local arena for anyone who is interested. There will be events such as volleyball and a horseshoe tournament. The festival will start July 29 and will finish on August 6. If this is your kind of festival, then be at the Newport Arena for these dates!

On August 2, The General Band will be playing in Chandler. They will be playing the best American country. If you are a lover of country music; specifically American country, then come down and join the fun!

The Kempffer Cultural and Interpretation Centre invites you to a new exhibition entitled Painted with Wool, starting on July 27 from 5 p.m. to 7 p.m. Come and explore the works of two artists who have revitalized the art of rug hooking. This exhibition will take place until September 22. For more information, please contact the Kempffer Centre.

Originally from Barrie, Ontario, John Wiseman began his career as an artist in the early 1970's. After meeting Lucie Lagueux, they moved to Percé and over the next ten years they restored their home and gallery and Maisonart officially opened in 1989. His love and appreciation for nature and the Gaspesian environment is evident in his work. He has been described as being a world class naturalist.

Diane Skinner

Art speaks to us what words cannot. The astonishing beauty of the Gaspé Peninsula provides an inspiring environment for artists. The artist sees the world and "translates" it for us with paint or wood or glass or stone. This is an 8week series that will introduce you to some of the many artists of the Gaspé.

You can visit John Wiseman's website and peruse the categories of paintings found there under the headings of Birds, Landscapes, Heritage, Insects and Mammals, World War II Aviation and Pen and Ink Prints. A visit to his studio is imperative. To see John Wiseman's original paintings up close is a moving experience.

A visit to Maisonart in Anse à Beaufils informs the visitor about who John Wiseman is. When you arrive at his home you can immediately see the gorgeous gardens and are greeted by his friendly dogs. The exterior of Lucie and John's home is beautifully restored, while respecting the historical aspects of the house which was built circa 1845. In the driveway is a lovingly-restored car which is the subject of his painting, Gustave's 48. (Can be found on his website) When you visit his gallery, allow lots of time to see not only his paintings, but his collections of agates, beetles and other examples of nature.

John Wiseman appreciates nature, and as a boy he recalls receiving an Audobon book as a gift from his grandfather. It fascinated him. As a young man, he and a friend would visit the local TV tower to rescue birds that had been injured or killed by hitting the tower during migration. John also remembers being fascinated by bird eggs. The first nest he found was that of a Starling. His interest and appreciation for nature started early.

John Wiseman is a very hands-on person who has always loved the outdoors. One summer, when he was a student, he and a friend decided to build a cabin and to retreat north of the big cities. All that summer he gathered his materials from a job at a local woodyard. John told his parents about his plan but they were still a little shocked on the day when all the building materials were delivered. By the way, he built that cabin and lived in it for about a year where he began in a serious way to pursue his artistic career. He recalls one time that he and his friend walked into town in a blinding snowstorm, an 18-mile trek during which they nearly perished.

He has a keen sense of observation and has always kept journals of his experiences with nature. These early experiences provided him with the skills necessary to be an artist – his ability to portray his subjects requires knowledge and the evident love and appreciation he holds for nature and historical objects is reflected in his work.

John Wiseman, whose Maisonart Gallery is in Anse à Beaufils, has been a respected, independent artist for over 40 years.

Wiseman's fascination for birds, for example, is so impressive. He was speaking about a new bird he recently identified on the Gaspé, with a "strange song." It was a whiteeyed vireo, a small songbird normally found in southeastern U.S. It was the second record

A series of his paintings under the heading Heritage is homage to Gaspesian history. He says simply, "I like old things." He respects Gaspesian heritage – architecture of old buildings, farm tools and cars.

How does John Wiseman go about choosing his subjects for his art? He says that sometimes he broods over an idea for years and sometimes those ideas come to him spontaneously. In those instances, he tends to "exploit the moment." His work has been described as brilliant because he is able to not just depict a subject, but to capture its essence. This is a tribute to his keen observational skills. Does he paint from photographs? His answer to that question is, "What fun would that be?"

Artists that he admires inand he says it does so pretty abruptly, he begins to paint once more. He paints one project at a time because he likes to "give 100% to my work." He says his approach to his work is methodical and his preferred medium, he explains, is watercolours because of its fluidity, semi-transparency and its natural, organic feeling. Beginning at 7 in the morning, he is usually working until 6:30 p.m. when he picks up his wife Lucie from her day's work at the college in Gaspé. His workday normally ranges over 8 to 12 hours.

If his style has changed over the years, he says not in ways he is aware of, but he adds that his style has likely matured. "Every painting is an experiment," and he is always looking out at his surroundings, watching and observing. He keeps birdfeeders that often invite subjects for paintings.

John Wiseman says that painting is an "unpredictable" business because an artist can go months without a sale. He recalls a tourist who came to the gallery and walked over to a painting and said, within moments, "that one!" The tourist had been to Maisonart 10 years before and told John that he had always thought about that painting. So he returned to buy it. His giclee prints are an affordable way to start your John Wiseman art collection. Giclee prints are high quality inkjet prints. John Wiseman prefers to produce prints in small, limited editions in the same size as the original painting.

clude Clarence Gagnon, Frank Carmichael, A.J. Casson and Raymond Ching (who is also known for his contemporary bird paintings). John Wiseman has no formal art training and he is a self-educated man, but it is evident that he is still acquiring knowledge about the world.

John Wiseman likes to sketch outside but paints, mostly in watercolours, in his studio; most paintings take anywhere from three weeks to three months to complete. He is busy in and around Maisonart all summer, but as soon as tourist season ends, fortunate to have a world-class artist who so lovingly interprets the beauty around us.

Visit John Wiseman's gallery and studio at 826 Route 132, Anse à Beaufils, Percé. Tel.: 418-782-2047. Website: www.johnwiseman.net. Prices are available onsite for original paintings. Even if you do not buy original paintings, you should see them. Very high quality giclee prints are sold unframed, $200 - $375. Full custom framing services are also available.

Ristigouche South East raises $26,000 in two weeks

RISTIGOUCHE SOUTH EAST: – The fundraising campaign relaunched by Ristigouche South East on July 6 yielded good results over the two ensuing weeks. Close to $26,000 was donated as of July 20. The town of Rimouski made a substantial contribution when its council agreed to a $5,000 donation.

Some villages from the rest of Quebec have also contributed smaller amounts, and a number of citizens have also donated.

The Municipality of Ristigouche South East must raise $328,000 to assure its defence in a lawsuit initiated by Gastem, an oil company seeking a $1.5 million compensation following the adoption by the village of a regulation protecting its water sources.

By July 6, Ristigouche South East had raised $182.473 since the summer of 2014. On July 21, that amount had reached $203,885, excluding the Rimouski donation. The initial goal was $225,000 but the legal case has dragged on and won't be heard before September 5. Moreover, the trial was supposed to last four days and is now set for ten. All those delays have increased legal fees.

The mayor of Ristigouche South East, François Boulay, is happy with the way some Gilles Gagné municipalities have reacted over the last two weeks.

"It is going well. I wrote specific letters to the municipalities of Gatineau, Montreal, Longueuil, Sherbrooke and Rimouski and asked for an amount of $5,000. Rimouski is the first one to come forward with a resolution. I sent the same letter to all the municipalities of Quebec, without specifying an amount. Some have already answered, like Saint-Colomban and Matane. The mayor of Rimouski, Marc Parent, told me that he hopes his town's decision will trigger a small snow ball. I told him I hope it will be a big snow ball," comments Mr. Boulay, stressing that summer time often slows things down at the municipal level.

Gastem is seeking compensation representing fiveand-a-half times the annual municipal budget of Ristigouche South East, which has a population of 157 people.

In his letter to the 1,273 municipalities of Quebec, François Boulay is making it clear that the jurisprudence that will stem from the judgement will have a big impact on the towns and villages' capacity to protect the interest of their inhabitants.

"I count a lot on the municipalities to raise the amount that is missing. Rimouski is one of the 230 mu-

The Quebec government's current rule calls for a buffer zone of 500 metres. Most experts consider 500 metres greatly insufficient.

There was no regulation in Quebec regarding that type of buffer zone when Gastem announced its intentions of drilling about 100 metres from the Kempt River in 2011.

The Quebec Department of Natural Resources granted a permit to do so in 2012 and Ristigouche South East reacted, following the pressure of its population, by adopting a regulation similar to the town of Gaspé. Gaspé adopted its rule in December 2012 and Ristigouche South East in March 2013.

All the houses of Ristigouche South East rely on Artois wells for their drinking water.

To support Ristigouche South East, a fund-raising show featuring humorist Jici Lauzon will take place on the evening of July 31 at the Matapedia auditorium . More information is available on the www.solidariteristigouche.ca web site.

$80 million invested in Forillon National Park!

Since 2009, nearly $80 million has been invested to protect and present Forillon National Park, as part of Parks Canada's unprecedented $3 billion federal infrastructure investment program. These investments will help create memorable experiences for visitors and make park infrastructure safer and more appealing. Below is an update on current and upcoming projects.

ROUTE 132 RESURFACING - PHASE 4 Currently underway. Expected completion: Spring 2018.

RECONSTRUCTION IN CAP-DES-ROSIERS HARBOUR

Currently underway. Expected completion of the dredging work: winter 2018. Expected completion of the work on the North and South jetties: 2019.

FORT PENINSULA RESTORATION

Completed. Site now opened.

RENOVATION OF CAMPROUND SERVICES BUILDINGS

Work on the Petit Gaspé Campground starts at the end of the summer. Expected completion date: Spring 2018. Refurbishment of East (loops A–C), West (loops B–D), and oTENTik (loop F) buildings.

REFURBISHMENT AND RESTORATION OF THE HERITAGE INFRASTRUCTURES USED BY VISITORS

Refurbishment of the buildings in Anse-Blanchette and the Grande-Grave wharf (phase 1) begins in September 2017. Possible closure of the Blanchette buildings at the end of the 2017 season.

RECONSTRUCTION AND UPGRADING OF CAP-DES-ROSIERS INTERPRETATION CENTRE

Work starts fall 2017. Site closed in 2018. Reopens summer 2019. The building will be renovated to improve visitor experiences. Temporary Visitor Centre will be set up during the works.

Several samples will be taken at least once a week, in different spots of the supervised swimming area, commits the mayor of Gaspé.

HALDIMAND BEACH WATER: Town will do its own tests

Geneviève Gélinas

GASPÉ: – The Town of Gaspé will analyze the Haldimand beach water quality for swimmers. The municipality is questioning the methodology used by the Quebec Environment Ministry through its program Environnement-Plage.

Last summer, the beach was closed to swimming during two busy periods, at the beginning of July and at the end of July/beginning of August, because the ministry gave a D rating to its water, what means "polluted." The beach was also rated D once during the summer of 2012, after heavy rain.

"Last summer, we went from a D rating to an A or B rate (excellent or good quality) during the same week. It triggered some doubt for us. We thought that there could be a problem of methodology," says Gaspé Mayor Daniel Côté.

For the first test of the season, on July 10, a municipal employee took two samples of water at the same moment, at the same place and in the same way as the ministry employee, and then sent them to the same laboratory. The results were different. "The ministry assigned a D rate to the beach. As for the town samples, one was rated A and the other was rated between A and B," Mr. Côté reports. He thinks that the ministry's method isn't well adapted to the reality of the Haldimand Beach. "If you take your sample beside a gull dropping, it's enough for the results to be biased."

The tests measure the rate of enterococci, bacteria found in bowels and feces of humans and of several animals. They don't cause an infection for humans in good health but can cause one for vulnerable or weakened people.

The town methodology, if municipal employees are to make the sampling, remains to be determined. However, several samples will be taken at least once a week, in different spots of the supervised swimming area, commits the mayor.

The limit to consider the beach as polluted will be the same as the limit of the environment ministry, that is to say 36 or more colonies of enterococci per 100 millilitres.

"It could still happen that we close the beach to swimming if our tests show that the quality of water isn't good enough for swimming," says Mr. Côté. "If only one sample out of four is contaminated, for example, the town will question the random nature of quality by the Quebec Environment Ministry.

Up to standard septic systems

Spec asked Daniel Côté if every effort had been made to make sure that human beings were not the source of contamination. He replied that the septic systems of the beach facilities were brought up to standards in 2012. The trailers once parked close to the beach have been moved and now have an up-to-date septic system. The cottages of the surroundings also comply with the standards, states Mr. Côté.

"We succeeded in eradicating the contamination sources located close to the beach. But there are still nonlisted septic systems along the rivers and along the sea. As for the boats, probably not all of them empty their tank in compliance with the regulations," the mayor points out.

From La Cache to the estuary: A photographic essay of the Grand Cascapedia

Press release

CASCAPEDIA: - From August 2 to the 25, at the Cascapedia River Museum, the landscape photographer, Barry Le Blanc, will exhibit striking images of this internationally renowned salmon river: icy conditions, spring thaw, seasonal fogs, the photographer from Cascapedia-St-Jules has managed to capture the changing spirit of the Grand Cascapedia. He brings to light many beautiful spots between the Relais de La Cache at km 62 and the estuary, unveiling small islands, bends, white waters, hills and mountains, all natural landmarks of this fantastic landscape. Of course, fishermen and canoes are also part of the scenery.

Please note that on opening night, Barry Le Blanc will present an audiovisual documentary of 50 minutes where the guests can view nearly 300 photos, listen to seasoned guides speak about their experience on the river, get to know some of the salmon pools, such as Old Tracadie, Big Curly, Little Jonathan, Patterson's Ledge... a great opportunity to discover hidden treasures of one of the great jewels of the Gaspe!

place in the Chandler area since the end of June, Mr. Dubé points out that decisions will be made soon.

"The Ministry of Transport (officials) will decide who will pay. So far, we have paid for the initial part of the work. We are no longer receiving grants for operational purposes. We are profitable because of the windmill blade trains. We might decide to pay protection work there with our profits," he adds. The Gaspésie Railway Society, an entity founded by the municipalities located along the railway, owned the Matapedia-Gaspé line until experiencing financial difficulties in November 2014. After Transports Québec acquired the line in March 2015, the Gaspésie Railway Society remained the TRAIN: operator.

The second meeting of the railway monitoring committee is not scheduled yet but all the parties have agreed to meet again before Labour Day, at the end of August or the beginning of September.

Meanwhile, the management of the Gaspésie Railway Society will assess over the next weeks the cost of bringing the Amiral tourist train back to New Richmond. The train is blocked in Gaspé since the summer of 2015. "I want to see the cost of bringing the locomotive to New Richmond, whole or in a certain number of parts. We need it for our operations. We will also bring the passenger cars. We will not sell them. We might find opportunities to run them around here, while waiting for the return of the train to Gaspé," says Mr. Dubé.

The tests will cost the town a maximum of $1,000 to $1,500 per summer, the mayor estimates. The tests made by the environment ministry are free.

The delays between the sampling and the results will remain important, because the sample has first to be cultured for 48 hours. The results will be released through the internet and displayed on the beach in case of closing.

Mayor Côté reminds us that the Haldimand Beach is possibly the only (marine) beach on the Gaspé that is tested for swimming water

Obituaries

BOYLE: Stanley

Passed away at the CISSS de la Gaspésie-Hôpital de Gaspé on July 14, 2017. He leaves behind his children: Chuck and Amy (Donnie); his granddaughter and an always very caring Wendy. He is survived by many loving brothers and sisters and countless nieces and nephews.

Pre-deceased by his parents, Matthew and Lena Boyle; his brothers Andrew, Vincent and Ray and his sisters Alma and Pearl.

He also leaves behind his beloved garage, his very successful hunting spot and his famous old Jimmy.

A memorial gathering was held at the Résidence funéraire Valère Fortin located at 86, rue Jacques Cartier, in Gaspé, on July 18 from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Gaspé Cancer Society.

Memorial Service

The family of the late Robert Lloyd Patterson would like you to join them on August 4 at 2 p.m. for the burial of his ashes at St. James cemetery in Wakeham. A celebration of his life will follow immediately after at the York Hall.

Card of Thanks

We, the family of the late Nora Ross, would like to send a heartfelt thank-you to all those who provided comfort and support for us in our time of loss.

We are grateful for friends at this sad time. All the calls, donations, flowers, visits, emails and messages on social media were much appreciated.

Your attendance at the funeral parlour and church service will long be remembered by Nora's family. Thank you to the pallbearers.

Thanks also to Dr. Basque and the staff at the CHSLD in New Carlisle for their excellent care. Again, a sincere thank-you. Thanks to Réjean Belanger Funeral Home for their professional service.

Bluebirds, Buttercups and Bobolinks

The sun upon my face did shine This special early morning day. The ocean here an endless blue Sparkling in wonderful display.

A nesting box just east of me Drew eyes with movement there. For glimmering flashes of blue Could be seen from everywhere.

Bluebirds came from southern places Deciding upon this northern home. So far to travel, so far to go One wonders why, so far to roam.

Eggs of three, all powdered blue, Demanded warmth as night grew cold. Great odds were cast upon their survival. A gambler placed it, a thousand fold.

The pair of bluebirds, young in heart Teenagers perhaps, in their first try But our great Creator, Savior, Lord Watched over them with eagle eye.

The skies grew warm Permitting insects to prosper. Food galore Both parents made frenzied visits Providing sustenance, growth and more

And in the air one day they fledged Creating a spirit of freedom, joy Now on their own and where to go Two special gals and a poster boy

In the back fields were buttercups All shiny and yellow speaking of love. Bobolinks there, a couple too Sang praises as they flew above.

In their bubbling melody One knew it would not be long Before offspring would meet them in air Singing their own sweet song.

Point to ponder

Ever wonder...

Why the sun lightens our hair, but darkens

Life is full of coincidences...

A recent visitor to The Spec office, Mrs. Betty Le Maistre, mentioned that Jewell Allen (Roy), Specs's summer proofreader was a former grade 4 student of hers, surprisingly Joan Sawyer (Imhoff), Spec's office manager, was a former grade 4 student of Jewell's. A neat coincidence, don't you think?

GUINNESS WORLD RECORDS SAYS THE RIDEAU CANAL SKATEWAY IN OTTAWA IS THE LARGEST NATURALLY FROZEN ICE RINK IN THE WORLD. IT MEASURES 7.8 KM (4.8 MILES).

ARIES - Mar 21/Apr 20 You may need to dim your lights so you do not outshine others, Aries. You can be a force and it pays to let others share a bit of the spotlight. This will garner some goodwill.

TAURUS - Apr 21/May 21

Taurus, settle into your comfort zone at home and take on all of the domestic tasks that have fallen by the wayside. You are very happy in your personal haven, Taurus.

GEMINI - May 22/Jun 21

Gemini, you may need to sort out a complicated relationship that has you trying to figure out who is friend who, if anyone, is foe. Play it carefully until you have all of the facts.

CANCER – Jun 22/Jul 22

Sift through all of your financial matters and start to get your ducks in a row, Cancer. This is a prime time to take an assessment of your income and spending habits.

LEO – Jul 23/Aug 23

Leo, if personal growth or a change has been on your mind, why not get started this week? You may benefit from a minor makeover or a change of scenery. VIRGO – Aug 24/Sept 22

Virgo, don't be afraid to unload some clutter in the weeks ahead. Inventory all of your belongings and see what can be donated or removed. Enjoy the feelings of freedom this inspires. LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23 Libra, your social schedule in the coming days is as busy as ever, but you don't know how you will find the time. Make a list of your biggest priorities.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22 Scorpio, it's best to check your sense of direction from time to time to make sure you are not going the wrong way at full speed. Use a friend as your personal GPS. SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21 Are you spreading yourself too thin, Sagittarius? Instead of dabbling in five or six plans, stick to one or two. By so doing, you'll be able to focus your energy that much better. CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20 Don't be too hasty to accept things at face value, Capricorn. Investigate a little further before you invest any of your time. And especially before you hand over any money. AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18 It's time to get off the fence, Aquarius. You have to make a decision even if the answer you are leaning toward is painful or complicated. Once you move on you'll be content.

A GASPESIAN'S GUIDE TO THE

From one end of the Coast to the other, there's no doubt that our region has marvels that never cease to amaze even the locals. This series will introduce you to the different sights and wonders of our home in the hopes that you will create special memories of your very own.

NEW RICHMOND

This week we'll be taking a peek into New Richmond, considered by many to be the activity centre of the whole Coast and home to many festivals during the summer.

Duthie Point is an historical village chronicling British history here on the Coast with buildings from various eras. A thorough visit of this historic journey takes a good portion of a morning and holds relics of the past many museums are jealous of. For a variety of entertainment, the village also boasts hiking trails, a playground and a nearby beach. To get to Duthie Point, turn south on Boulevard Perron West from Route 132. The village will be on the right, where you can take a sneak peek at the history that lays in the buildings near the road.

Towards the end of August, Duthie Point also holds its own Bluegrass Festival-seven days of foottapping and head-nodding live music fun! Camping is free.

Continuing east along Boulevard Perron West is the Salle de Spectacles on the right. This venue hosts a multitude of acts ranging from comedy, live music and dance, to theatre and variety shows for plenty of evening entertainment, assuming it's your style.

New Richmond is also home to one of the few shopping malls on the Coast. It is on the left, a little further down the road from the Salle de Spectacles. The mall hosts establishments that sell groceries, clothing, electronics, etc. There is also a restaurant with seating areas both inside and out. You can relax and wind down after spending a morning exploring the town of New Richmond. Keep going along Perron

West, past the bridge, and to the right is Taylor's Point. Featuring a beautiful view of the Chaleur Bay and the estuary of the Little Cascapedia River, Taylor's Point has a dock from which to launch kayaks, paddleboards and canoes. There is also a kayak and canoe rental service.

A stretch of beach connects the sea to the park. It has a cycling road and winding footpaths, good for rollerblading as well. Campgrounds line the area near Taylor's Point and there is a canteen with plenty of eating space not too far away. With picture-perfect scenery and plenty of things to do, Taylor's Point is one of the best places in New Richmond to spend an afternoon with family or to have a picnic.

Every Saturday from the beginning of June until the beginning of September, Taylor's Point hosts a market featuring over a dozen local agricultural producers, artists and artisans. Come between
